

Cancer Survivorship Certification for Health Professionals

The Cancer Survivorship Education Certificate for Health Professionals is a free, certified educational program that equips community care providers with critical knowledge to effectively manage the long-term side effects and overall health needs of cancer survivors.

Comprised of three certificates – silver, gold and platinum – this program builds upon the knowledge gained in each tier to create a comprehensive understanding of best practices in survivorship care. Continuing education credits are awarded upon the completion of each certificate tier.

Silver Certificate

Complete all online modules in the Survivorship Series to learn the foundations of cancer survivorship care, including domains of survivorship care and disease-specific management for breast, prostate, colon, and lung cancer.

This certificate requires about 5.5 hours of asynchronous online learning to complete.

Gold Certificate

Once you have completed the Silver certificate, you will be invited to further expand your scope of knowledge in cancer survivorship by completing the Gold Certificate of the Cancer Survivorship Education Certificate for Health Professionals at no charge. Apply your knowledge to case-based scenarios and explore more topics related to cancer survivorship, including management of adolescent and young adult survivors, chemotherapy-induced peripheral neuropathy, prostate cancer screening and integrative medicine.

This certificate requires about 4 hours of asynchronous online learning to complete.

Platinum Certificate

You will become eligible to join our Platinum certificate program, which includes membership to our Extension for Community Healthcare Outcomes (ECHO) program, once you've completed the Gold certificate. ECHO offers live, synchronous learning through telementoring, as well as didactic and case-based lectures about the latest advancements in cancer survivorship care.

This certificate requires attending at least six live, one-hour virtual sessions.
