

LORENZO COHEN, PhD, is the Richard E. Haynes Distinguished Professor in Clinical Cancer Prevention and director of the Integrative Medicine Program at The University of Texas MD Anderson Cancer Center in Houston. He is a co-founder and past president of the Society for Integrative Oncology the former vice-chair of the Academic Consortium for Integrative Medicine and Health. Dr. Cohen leads a team conducting research and delivering clinical care of integrative medicine practices such as meditation, yoga, tai chi, music therapy, acupuncture, massage, diet, exercise, and other strategies aimed at reducing the negative aspects of cancer treatment and improving quality of life and clinical outcomes. His research simultaneously assesses psychological, behavioral, and physiological factors in an attempt to better understand the cancer process. As most cancers are preventable, Dr. Cohen is also conducting research to demonstrate that lifestyle factors can influence cancer outcomes. Dr. Cohen has published over 200 scientific articles in top medical journals, has edited two books on integrative medicine for cancer care, co-edited the book entitled The Principles and Practice of Yoga in Health Care, and is co-author of an evidence-based book for the general public Anticancer Living: Transform Your Life and Health with the Mix of Six.