

Utilization of circulating tumor DNA as a biomarker in patients with resectable colorectal liver metastasis: A case report on oncologic surveillance and detection of disease recurrence

(presenting author): Adelina Leong, PA-C: Adelina is a physician assistant in the department of surgical oncology at MD Anderson Cancer Center specializing in hepato-pancreato-biliary cancer. She obtained her Bachelor's degree in Nutritional Sciences at The University of Texas at Austin and completed her Masters of Physician Assistant Studies at The University of Texas Medical Branch in 2020. She has dual responsibilities in assisting in the operating room and outpatient clinic. Adelina is passionate about delivering the highest level of patient care and contributing to research. On her spare time, she enjoys baking, cycling, and spending time with her family and friends.

Deborah Mrema

Steven H. Wei, EdD, MPH, MS, PA-C, DFAAPA: Steve has been an APP in department of surgical oncology for over 22 years and as an APP supervisor for over 12 yrs. He is a graduate of the Baylor PA program and recently completed his EdD in professional leadership from the University of Houston. He is a recipient of several APP awards and has taken on several leadership positions with national organizations. He is the founder and co-chair of the SOAP conference. Steve has a passion for education and APP leadership development and is a frequent speaker on these topics