Making Cancer History®

The goal of this symposium is to provide health care professionals with knowledge and skills resulting in the ability to improve patient care.

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES

After attending the Symposium, participants should be able to

- Implement guidelines to assess and screen high-risk patients in daily practice;
- Recognize and document key features associated with potential hereditary cancer predisposition adequately to refer at-risk patients for cancer assessment;
- Recognize and implement surgical interventions, screening protocols, and systemic therapies appropriate for specific hereditary cancer predisposition syndromes/genes;
- Recognize impact of genetic testing results on the patient, psychosocially and medically, for current and long-term management;
- Identify a genetic counseling service delivery model that fits their clinical practice and implement a referral strategy;
- Differentiate the utility of various genetic testing modalities commonly used related to oncology risk and care.

EDUCATIONAL METHODS

Lectures – Panel Discussions – Case Studies – Question and Answer Sessions

TARGET AUDIENCE

This symposium should be of value to physicians, advanced practice providers, nurses, and oncology genetic counselors.

EVALUATION

A course evaluation survey will provide participants with the opportunity to comment on the value of the program content to their practice decisions, performance improvement activities, or possible impact on patient health status. Participants will also have the opportunity to comment on any perceived commercial bias in the presentations as well as to identify future educational topics.

ETHICS

The “Ethical Considerations for GT” lecture has been designated by The University of Texas MD Anderson Cancer Center for .50 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™ in medical ethics and/or professional responsibility.

ACCREDITATION/CREDIT DESIGNATION

The University of Texas MD Anderson Cancer Center is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) to provide continuing medical education for physicians.
